

45
IS THE NEW 50

Due to rising colorectal cancer cases among adults younger than 50, things are changing.

SCHEDULE A COLONOSCOPY

FranciscanHealth.org/ColonCare

Now recommended starting at age 45, a colonoscopy is the ONLY cancer screening where physicians can find precancerous polyps and remove them at the same time. And because colorectal cancer doesn't always cause symptoms at first, getting a colonoscopy at an earlier age could save your life.
